- "Practice makes perfect" If the individual holds the INED position in more listed companies, he/ she will be more familiar with his/her duty and responsibility as the INED and the provisions of the Listing Rules/ GEM Listing Rules.
- At present, members of the listing committee of the Stock Exchange (the "Members") (the "Committee") also comprise professionals such as partners of international law firms and managing directors of the investment banks who are intensively occupied by their full-time jobs, and they still need to meet on every Thursday for the Committee's regular meeting. Whereas an INED normally only meets four times in each financial year. Therefore, even if an individual holds the INED position in a few listed companies, the total number of hours he/she needs to contribute to his/her INED position is still rather insignificant as compared to the total number of hours the Members are required to spend for the Committee.
