The purpose of the size tests is to assess the materiality of a particular transaction and its impact on the revenue, profits, asset base, and as appropriate, capital base of the issuer. Accordingly, materiality should be assessed with reference to the size of the issuer and not an arbitrarily determined monetary cap. A particular monetary cap could be material to some but not all issuers. It should be recognized that the total market capitalisation of Main Board issuers has been seen to have increased substantially over the years due to the organic growth of the issuers as well as the addition of large-cap Chinese stocks. For instance, large-cap Chinese stocks now accounts for about 38% of the Hang Seng Index. The retention of a monetary cap would derogate from the objective of the proposal to raise the de minimus cap in the first place. The idea is thus unnecessary and impracticable, and does not recognize the commercial reality of the Hong Kong financial market.

| 11.           | Do you believe that an absolute monetary cap should also be imposed, irrespective of the percentage threshold test for de minimis exemptions? If your answer is yes, please specify the monetary cap that you consider appropriate for fully exempt connected transactions (the monetary cap for connected transactions exempt from independent shareholders' approval would be adjusted proportionately). |   |  |  |
|---------------|--|---|--|--|
|               |  | Yes. The monetary cap for fully exempt connected transactions should be:  |  |  |
|               |  | HK$100 million HK$200 million HK$500 million HK$1,000 million Other monetary cap (please specify): HK$                   |  |  |
