The proposed change is totally contradictory to the recent efforts by HKEx to strengthen the corporate governance. In addition, the problems (or reasons for such proposal) described in the consultation paper namely (i) the issuer would prefer someone who is familiar with the company affairs rather than someone who possesses the professional qualifications and (ii) issuers with principle business activities outside HK prefer not to find someone who is familiar with HK regulations are totally non-sense and not acceptable. As a general business principle, say, if a company decides to invest overseas, the first thing this company needs to do is to familiarize itself with the laws and regulations of the country it is planning to operate in. On the same principle, if they choose or decide to list in HK, they should have done the needy to hire someone who has the general knowledge of compliance and the relevant qualifications. Accountant needs qualification, why not company secretary? The proposal by HKEx now is no different than to encourage the board or management team of issuers to pay no effort for rule compliance. Breaking down the rules is easy, re-building it in the future is much more difficult.

The general practice of granting such general waiver should be avoided as well.

| 12. | Do you agree with the proposals (a) to provide an exemption for Main Board listed issuers that are banking companies or insurance companies from including a working capital statement, subject to appropriate alternative disclosures in their listing documents and transaction circulars if they are able to meet the same conditions as those set out in Main Board Rule 8.21A(2), and (b) to limit Main Board Rule 8.21A(2) so that the exemption applies only to banking companies or insurance companies, subject to alternative disclosures in their listing documents and the conditions as described in paragraph 73 of the Consultation Paper? |
