Question 8

Do you agree that a Commercial Company applicant must have a minimum expected market capitalisation of HK$8 billion?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Although we have received feedback from some companies in the specialist tech industries that the HK$8bn minimum market cap is too high, we still hold the view that the HK$8bn is the right threshold:

1. To better facilitate post-IPO trading liquidity, market cap above US$1bn is the right threshold to attract decent institutional demand
2. It also serves as a market driven approach to select quality issuers to be listed under such chapter - when the market environment is relatively weak like the one we are in today, it means that the issuers need to have bigger scale to list and when the market sentiment; when the market environment returns to normal or more bullish environment, quality issuers will achieve higher valuation

On the other hand, we do recognize that with the HK$8bn threshold and the current market environment we are in, it could mean that there will be less issuers to be listed under this new chapter initially and only the top quality ones.

It is also a ultimate decision by the exchange to balance quality of the issuers vs. quantity of issuers under this new listing chapter

Question 9

Do you agree that a Pre-Commercial Company applicant must have a minimum expected market capitalisation of HK$15 billion at listing?

No

Please give reasons for your views.

We understand that Exchange's original intention to raise market cap threshold for pre-commercial applicant further is also focus on quality as the risk category of pre-commercial applicant is higher than commercialized issuers

However, even if the market cap threshold of pre-commercial applicant is same as commercialized issuers, the bar is higher as the market would apply higher risk probably rate on the estimated future cashflows (typically less than 50% probability assumed for future cashflows) and require much higher rate of return (more than double than commercialized business) to this category of issuers and the bar to achieve same level of valuation is inherent much higher already

Question 10

Do you agree that a Commercial Company must have revenue of at least HK$250 million for the most recent audited financial year?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 11

Do you agree that only the revenue arising from the applicant's Specialist Technology business segment(s) (excluding any inter-segmental revenue from other business segments of the applicant), and not items of revenue and gains that arise incidentally, or from other businesses, should be recognised for the purpose of the Commercialisation Revenue Threshold?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 12(a)

Do you agree that a Commercial Company must demonstrate year-on-year growth of revenue derived from the sales of Specialist Technology Product(s) throughout the track record period, with allowance for temporary declines in revenue due to economic, market or industry-wide conditions?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Agree in principle. One factor to consider is that many issuers under specialist tech may be the first out of its industry to list on the exchange and its hard to get revenue numbers of other peers in the market/industry to prove that its market or industry-wide condition/trend

Also issuers' growth and tech strength are all critical factors considered by investors and will be reflected in its valuation. So in a way, the market cap threshold already indirectly capture an issuer's growth potential

Question 12(b)

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 22

Do you agree that as an indicative benchmark for meaningful investment, the aggregate investment from all Sophisticated Independent Investors should result in them holding such amount of shares or securities convertible into shares equivalent to at least such percentage of the issued share capital of the applicant at the time of listing as set out in Table 4 and paragraph 168 of the Consultation Paper?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 28

Do you agree that Independent Institutional Investors should be given a minimum allocation of offer shares in the IPO of Specialist Technology Companies to help ensure a robust price discovery process?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 29

Do you agree with the definition of Independent Institutional Investors as set out in paragraphs 201 to 202 of the Consultation Paper?

No

Please give reasons for your views. Please provide any alternative definition you believe appropriate with reasons for your suggestions.

Independent definition can be further considered - we would suggest to define as "non-connected institutional investors" - for institutional investors who are pre-IPO shareholders and no longer have board seat in the company post IPO, they know the business well and if they are willing to put more their money to work at the IPO valuation, it's very positive signal. Post IPO, their information access, influence on the issuer are on the same level of playing field with other public institutional investors. Therefore, we think this category of institutional investors should be qualified to be counted in the 50% threshold. Similar to public float definition

Do you agree that a Specialist Technology Company must, in addition to meeting the existing requirements on public float, ensure that at least 50% of the total number of shares offered in the initial public offering (excluding any shares to be issued pursuant to the exercise of any over-allotment option) must be taken up by Independent Institutional Investors?

No

Agree with 50% but as discussed in Q29, think the definition of independent institutional investors can be modified to non-connected institutional investors

Question 31

Do you agree that in the case where a Specialist Technology Company is listed by way of a De-SPAC Transaction, at least 50% of the total number of shares issued by the Successor Company as part of the De-SPAC Transaction (excluding any shares issued to the existing shareholders of the De-SPAC Target as consideration for acquiring the De-SPAC Target) must be taken up by Independent Institutional Investors?

No

Please give reasons for your views.

There are already Independent Institutional Investors at the SPAC company level and the de-spac transaction also requires shareholder voting of that independent institutional investors base

Should the independent institutional investors at the SPAC company level who will stay post the de-spac transaction be qualified to be counted in the 50% threshold

Question 32

Do you agree that in the case of a Specialist Technology Company seeking to list by introduction, the Exchange will consider granting waivers, on a case-by-case basis, from the requirement for the minimum allocation of offer shares to Independent Institutional Investors, if the applicant is able to demonstrate that it is expected to meet the applicable minimum market capitalisation at the time of listing (see paragraph 120 of the Consultation Paper), having regard to its historical trading price (for at least a six-month period) on a Recognised Stock Exchange with sufficient liquidity and a large investor base (a substantial portion of which are independent Institutional Professional Investors)?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 34

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 37

Question 42

Do you agree with the scope of key persons (as described in paragraph 242 of the Consultation Paper) that should be subject to a restriction on the disposal of their holdings after listing?

No

Please give reasons for your views.

We have received feedback from institutional investors that key persons should be subject to lock-up, but the definition of key “tech lead” personnel is not entirely clear, as there could be cases where key tech leads that should be subject to lock-up do not have corporate titles, or personnel with CTO / Business Unit Head title may not be the true tech lead (and their subsequent resignation / sell-down could be questioned by the Exchange)

They would propose that during vetting process, the applicant should submit to the Exchange, or disclose clearly in the prospectus, a list of employees who will be subject to longer lock-up

Do you agree with the proposed lock-up periods on the securities of such key persons and their close associates of 12 months for a Commercial Company?

AS most of the specialist tech companies should have received multiples rounds of investments prior to IPO, to allow secondary component at the IPO will help to clean up shareholder register and mitigate potential post lock-up selling pressure

Yes
