Question 22

Do you agree that 100% of the gross proceeds of a SPAC's initial offering must be held in a ring-fenced trust account located in Hong Kong?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

We conceptually agree to this proposal that the funds be ringfenced which also aligns with practices seen in other prominent markets. However, we recommend that there is no stringent cap maintained at 100% as sometimes SPACs would want to hold more funds in escrow to ensure Investors interest are protected.

For example: NYSE and NASDAQ listing requirements would permit an amount less than 100% of the gross IPO proceeds to be funded into the trust account, but equally we have seen market practice is to fund 100% or more so that, when the SPAC liquidates or conducts redemption offers, the shareholders should receive at least the face value for each share purchased.

Furthermore, see our response to Q23 for our concerns regarding a trust account

Question 23

Do you agree that the trust account must be operated by a trustee/custodian whose qualifications and obligations should be consistent with the requirements set out in

Chapter 4 of the Code on Unit Trusts and Mutual Funds?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Yes, the requirement to segregate the funds in a separate account is consistent with other market practices. However, we recommend the trust account should not be aligned to the code on unit trusts and mutual funds. Instead, the account should be structured as an escrow account (more aligned to the HKEX's IPO Receiving Bank regime). This is in line with other exchange houses.

We further suggest that the HKEX provides more clarity on below:

- 1) Account type – Since, trust account and escrow account have different fiduciary duty requirement and responsibility it will be better to clarify whether this is a true “trust” structure OR it will follow an “escrow” structure with all protections of a bank deposit. We think that a ring-fenced bank deposit for the SPAC should provide sufficient protection of the funds for use by the SPAC and that the funds should not need to be held on trust for the SPAC. If funds are required to be held on trust for the investors then this may add significant complexity to the structure and would be out of line with other international markets.
- 2) We also recommend clarifying the title and ownership of this account. i.e Under whose name will this trust/escrow account be open? SPAC itself? Or separate trustee/ SPAC promoter? It could also be both to keep it flexible
- 3) Some clarification on who are the Contracting parties to the trust/escrow account will be beneficial. Spac, Sponsor, Depositor, Arranging Bank and/or Shareholders?
- 4) Depositor of the trust/escrow account – As per the regulations applicable in the UK, the subscription monies from the SPAC listings are settled with the promoter's account before further depositing them to the trust/escrow account. Even in HKEX listing regime, the IPO proceeds are settled with the issuer initially before eventually being used for the deemed purposes. We hence recommend that SPAC proceeds are deposited in the escrow by the promoters from their account after all listing formalities are completed.

Question 24

Do you agree that the gross proceeds of the SPAC's initial offering must be held in the form of cash or cash equivalents such as bank deposits or short-term securities issued by governments with a minimum credit rating of (a) A-1 by S&P; (b) P-1 by Moody's Investors Service; (c) F1 by Fitch Ratings; or (d) an equivalent rating by a credit rating agency acceptable to the Exchange?

Yes

Please give reasons for your views.

Yes, we are in agreement with this proposal in general and it is also in line with other exchange houses.

Would be even more beneficial if you could clarify whether:

- DO the range of investments also allow Money Market fund ?

For example, as per SEC rule 2a-7, if more than 70% of the SPAC investors are from US, the SPAC proceeds must be invested in US Money Market fund. Would be better to clarify such finer requirements (if applicable in detail)
