Question 1

Do you agree that the minimum issue price for DWs should be lowered from HK$0.25 to HK$0.15?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views and any alternative suggestions.

Lowering the minimum issue price could increase market liquidity and make the warrants accessible to a broader range of investors. However, it might also result in higher market volatility and attract less sophisticated market participants. Regulatory compliance and robust risk management are essential considerations. A review of historical trends and similar adjustments in comparable markets is necessary. Ultimately, a detailed analysis and consultation with market and regulatory experts is recommended before any change is implemented.

Question 2

Do you agree with the proposal to remove the minimum issue price requirement for CBBCs?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views and any alternative suggestions.

Removing the minimum issue price requirement for CBBCs would enhance market liquidity and allow a broader range of investors to participate. It would eliminate an artificial barrier, enabling more flexible pricing that reflects true market dynamics. This change could foster increased competition and innovation among issuers and market makers. Additionally, with proper investor protection measures in place, the potential risks associated with lower-priced instruments can be effectively managed. Overall, this move is likely to contribute positively to market efficiency and dynamism.

Question 3

Do you agree with the proposal to lower the minimum market capitalisation at issuance for (a) DWs and (b) CBBCs from HK$10 million to HK$6 million if our proposals on the minimum issue price of the respective product are adopted?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Lowering the minimum market capitalisation requirement from HK, in conjunction with the adoption of lower minimum issue prices, will encourage more issuers to list these products, fostering innovation in both Derivative Warrants and CBBCs. This change creates a more accessible entry point for companies, reducing capital barriers and enabling a broader range of investment opportunities. It is expected to enhance liquidity and market dynamism as more products become available and attract diverse investor participation. Additionally, the alignment of market capitalisation and issue price adjustments ensures that both issuer and market needs are directly addressed, promoting a more efficient pricing mechanism. Overall, this synergy between lowering the market capital requirement and the minimum issue price supports a more competitive and investor-friendly market environment.

Question 4

Do you agree with the proposal to add additional entitlement ratios allowing the issuances of two, eight, 20, 80, 200, 800, 1,000, and thereafter in multiples of 500 units of structured products for one share (or other security) in relation to DW and CBBC issuances?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Adding additional entitlement ratios will enable issuers to tailor structured products more precisely to market demand and investor preferences, thus enhancing product appeal. It provides issuers with greater flexibility in structuring DW and CBBC issues, allowing them to fine-tune the relationship between the underlying security and the product. This greater granularity supports innovation in product design and diversification, which can attract a broader investor base. The more varied ratios can also improve market liquidity as investors find products that align more closely with their risk and return objectives. Overall, the proposal promotes a more dynamic and competitive market for structured products.

Question 5

Do you agree with the proposal to require Emulation Issues to have identical product terms as existing issues except for issue price and issue size?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

It provides consistency and clarity across product offerings. This uniformity makes it easier for investors to compare products and assess risks, as differences in performance can then be directly linked to pricing or size factors. It also streamlines internal processes and market oversight, reducing the potential for arbitrary variations that could confuse the market. Maintaining identical terms supports market integrity and helps ensure that investor protection measures are uniformly applied. Overall, this approach fosters a more transparent and efficient market environment for both issuers and investors.

Question 6

Do you agree with the proposal to determine the eligibility of ETFs as underlying securities (for structured products linked to single ETF) based on the AUM (rather than “public float capitalisation”) of ETFs?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

I agree with the proposal to use AUM as the eligibility criterion for ETFs in this context. AUM reflects the actual size and liquidity of the fund, offering a more direct indication of its ability to support structured products. In contrast, public float capitalisation may not accurately capture the underlying strength or investor interest in the ETF. This approach is likely to enhance market confidence as it aligns structured product issuance with underlying asset robustness. Overall, using AUM should help ensure that only ETFs with sufficient scale and liquidity are considered, thereby protecting investors and promoting market stability.

Question 7

With the above proposed change of reference to AUM for assessing eligibility of ETFs, do you agree with the proposal to change the eligibility threshold for an ETF as an underlying security for structured product issuances linked to a single ETF to at least HK$1 billion (instead of HK$4 billion) over the 60-day Qualifying Period?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Using AUM offers a more accurate reflection of a fund's liquidity and scale, making it a more relevant measure than public float capitalisation. Lowering the threshold promotes greater market participation by allowing a wider range of ETFs to qualify, thereby fostering innovation and diversity in structured product offerings. This change is expected to benefit investors by broadening their product choices while still ensuring that the ETFs possess sufficient liquidity over the 60-day Qualifying Period. Overall, provided that thorough due diligence is maintained, the proposed threshold adjustment could enhance market dynamism without compromising investor protection.

Question 8

Do you agree with the proposal to delete the Prescriptive Product Terms requirements from the Rules and require product issuance be subject to the permitted product terms to be published from time to time by the Exchange?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

This approach offers enhanced flexibility, allowing the terms to evolve in line with market developments without being restricted by rigid rule mandates. It streamlines the regulatory framework while still maintaining clear guidelines that protect investors and ensure market integrity. It also allows the Exchange to update and tailor these permitted terms more dynamically to reflect current market conditions. Overall, this change supports a more agile and market-responsive regulatory environment for structured product issuances.

Question 9

Do you agree with the proposal to, in relation to structured products which are, or which may be, settled by delivery of the underlying securities or assets, also allow the relevant terms and conditions to provide for electronic transfer for settlement of underlying securities or assets through other settlement platforms as approved by the Exchange?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

This flexibility permits issuers to leverage modern technological advancements while ensuring that the settlement process remains secure and efficient. It can also help reduce settlement times, ultimately enhancing market liquidity and operational efficiency. The use of multiple approved platforms further diversifies risk and improves the overall resilience of the settlement infrastructure. Overall, this change aligns with a dynamic market environment and supports the evolving needs of both issuers and investors.

Question 10

Do you agree that the minimum NAV requirement should be increased from HK$2 billion to HK$5 billion?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views and any alternative suggestions.

It would enhance overall market stability and investor protection by ensuring that issuers have a more substantial asset base. This increase would signal a commitment to quality and robustness, reducing the likelihood of liquidity issues or other risks that might arise from smaller asset pools. While it may limit the pool of eligible issuers, the trade-off favors a more resilient and secure market environment. The higher threshold also provides additional assurance to investors regarding the financial strength of the entities offering structured products. Overall, the proposal appears well-aligned with the goals of maintaining a safe and stable market for investors.

Question 11

Do you agree with the proposal to impose a mandatory requirement that issuers must be Regulated Entities?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Question 12

Do you agree with the proposal to mandate investment grade ratings awarded by all CRAs from which it has sought a credit rating and additional disclosure requirements in listing documents, where the requisite credit ratings should be obtained by:

(a) the issuer (or, in case the issuer is not rated, the issuer's Holding Companies); or

(b) in case of guaranteed issues, the guarantor, or (in case the guarantor is not rated) the issuer, or (in case neither the guarantor nor the issuer is rated) any of the guarantor's Holding Companies, or (in case none of the guarantor, the issuer or the guarantor's Holding Companies is rated) any of the issuer's Holding Companies?

and

the following disclosures should be included in the listing documents:

(c) the credit ratings are for investors' reference only,

(d) where the credit rating of the Holding Companies is relied upon by the issuer or the guarantor for eligibility assessment,

(i) identify the Holding Companies and describe their relationship with the issuer, and (in case of guaranteed issues) the guarantor; and

(ii) investors (1) shall have no recourse against the Holding Companies and (2) shall determine the relevance and significance of credit ratings of the Holding Companies?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Question 13

Do you agree with the proposal that, where an issuer fails to fulfil any of the proposed NAV requirement, the Regulated Entity requirement and the credit rating requirement, the issuer may issue guaranteed issues with the eligibility requirement being satisfied by a guarantor fulfilling all of the proposed NAV requirement, the Regulated Entity requirement and the credit rating requirement (see paragraph 99(c)(ii))?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Question 14

Do you agree with the proposal that: (a) an eligible issuer may issue guaranteed issues provided that such guarantor also satisfies the proposed NAV requirement, the Regulated Entity requirement and the credit rating requirement (see paragraph 99(c)(ii)); and (b) in such cases, each of the issuer and the guarantor will be required to individually comply with the Rules?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Question 15

Do you agree with the proposal to impose the following requirements on an ongoing basis whilst any of the issuers' structured products are listed on the Exchange, in addition to NAV requirement:

(a) issuers or (in the case of guaranteed issues) the guarantors shall, or (where credit ratings of Holding Companies are relied upon for eligibility assessment) shall ensure that the Holding Companies will, comply with the credit rating requirement; and

(b) issuers or (in the case of guaranteed issues) the guarantors shall comply with the Regulated Entity requirement?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Imposing these ongoing requirements will significantly bolster investor confidence and market integrity. Ensuring that issuers or guarantors, along with the relevant Holding Companies, maintain the necessary credit rating safeguards against potential downgrades that could compromise product stability. In addition, the requirement to comply with the Regulated Entity standard reinforces the commitment to stringent regulatory oversight and operational robustness. These measures, when combined with the existing NAV requirement, create a comprehensive framework that mitigates various risks associated with structured product listings. Overall, the proposal helps ensure that only financially sound and highly regulated entities continue to offer structured products on the Exchange, thereby enhancing market resilience.

Do you agree with the proposal to allow a transitional period of 12 months from the effective date of the Rule amendments for existing issuers and/or guarantors to comply with the new eligibility requirements?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

Question 17

Do you agree with the proposal to clarify that the Exchange may accept other group companies (meaning any of the issuer's Holding Companies, subsidiaries and fellow subsidiaries) to be the guarantor, taking into account the circumstances of the issuer and/or the guarantor as the Exchange may, in its discretion, consider appropriate?

Yes

Please provide reasons for your views.

It recognizes the importance of flexibility in managing group structures while ensuring robust guarantees for structured products. Allowing the Exchange to accept other group companies as guarantors enables a broader range of financial entities—whether Holding Companies, subsidiaries, or fellow subsidiaries—to support issuances, provided they meet the required credit and operational standards. This approach acknowledges that sometimes a group company other than the issuer may offer a stronger financial profile or better risk mitigation capabilities. It also empowers the Exchange to consider the unique circumstances of each issuer or guarantor, ensuring a tailored risk assessment process. Overall, this clarification can enhance market flexibility while maintaining high standards of investor protection and market stability.

(c) add a specific obligation in the Rules on issuers to comply with the minimum service levels for liquidity provision specified in the listing documents?

Please provide reasons for your views.

This measure ensures that investors can access up-to-date information, which is crucial for making informed investment decisions. It also enhances the oversight capabilities of the Exchange, as early disclosure allows for prompt monitoring and potential intervention if needed.
